SynthYoga

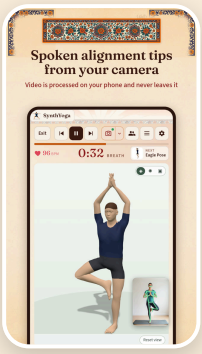

Yoga that talks you through every pose

Pick a routine, press play and follow spoken pose names, alignment cues and breath pacing, so you can keep your eyes off the screen.

Free · No ads · No account needed · Works offline · Open pose library

For your students

- Spoken pose names, alignment and muscle cues, with optional inhale and exhale pacing
- A 3D body shows every pose from any angle, with a preview of what comes next
- Quick starts for how you feel today: wake up, wind down, desk stiffness, low back, calm or strength
- Around 290 poses to explore in 3D, by muscle or as a photo, with Sanskrit names
- Optional live camera feedback with spoken alignment tips. Video never leaves the phone
- Programs, streaks and reminders, plus guided meditations and breathwork to wind down

For yoga teachers

- Build your class sequence with sections, music and hold times, then share it as a link or QR code
- Students repeat your flow at home between classes, with the same cues
- Booking that only ever shows you: free classes cost nothing, and your client list is yours to export
- Your coaching students come to your classes free, and class swaps share students with other coaching teachers
- A free listing in the teacher directory, and a blog for your students
- Easy to recommend: free, no ads, and practice data stays on the student's own device

Made for love and curiosity, built for community

A studio's real work is its community. We give it free tools, and keep the business side as cheap as we can.

- Open pose library: about 290 3D poses published as open data (CC BY-SA 4.0). Anyone can suggest a fix
- Practice Together: phones in the same room play one session in sync
- A free knowledge base: Learn articles, a Sanskrit glossary and a muscle map
- The lowest-cost booking system we could find (prices checked October 2026). Starter is free; Studio is A$15 a month
